

Update 16: Paris, France - Plans to Impose New COVID-19 Restrictions Amid Surge in COVID-19 Cases

- On October 1, Paris will likely move to a "maximum alert" level for COVID-19, France's health minister
- The government is set to introduce new measures to control the spread of the virus if the situation does not improve over the next couple of days
- One of the measures that could be introduced in the capital is the closure of bars and restaurants
- The transmission rate in the capital city rose above 250 cases per 100,000 inhabitants
- Paris so far has avoided further restrictions since a lockdown was lifted in mid-May
- Some cities including Marseille and Aix are already on the maximum risk category list
- The country has relied on a regional system to implement restrictions in areas where transmission rates of the virus are high
- On October 1, the country reported 13,970 confirmed COVID-19 cases along with 63 deaths
- As of now, the country reported 577,505 confirmed COVID-19 cases with 32,019 deaths (6% of total reported cases), and 96,797 recovered (17% of the total reported cases)
- Supply Wisdom is continuously monitoring the situation and will alert you to any relevant developments
