

Update 40: Victoria, Australia - Declares State of Disaster, Imposes Curfew Until September 13, 2020 to Contain COVID-19

- A state of disaster was declared in Australia's Victoria on August 2, with the local government implementing a night curfew as part of its harshest movement restrictions to date to contain the COVID-19
- Melbourne, the state's capital, will move to Stage 4 restrictions until September 13 given "unacceptably high" levels of community transmission
- For the next six weeks, Melbourne residents will face a curfew from 8pm to 5am (local time)
- They will also not be able to go further than 5km from home and will be limited to an hour of exercise a day
- Only one person per household will be able to shop for essential items each day, also within the same 5km radius
- Additional restrictions affecting workplaces would be announced on August 3, suggesting that non-essential businesses will face closures
- Outside Melbourne, the rest of Victoria will move to a Stage 3 lockdown with people allowed to leave home only for work, study, care, and essential shopping
- Elsewhere in Australia, other states and territories have for weeks reported zero or a small number of cases while relaxing restrictions
- Australia's total reported COVID-19 infections reached almost 18,000, with 208 deaths in a population of 25 million
- Supply Wisdom is continuously monitoring the situation and will alert you to any relevant developments
- Please consult Australian Government Department of Health (<https://www.health.gov.au/>) for latest information on COVID-19 in Australia
